

Education: Education is a universal rights and important to a human being, in all communities, from birth throughout life. Children and adults with disabilities are some of the most excluded and marginalized group within education. It is particularly important for pwds as rights in itself but also to enable them to access other rights. To reach to the millennium development goal of Education For All (EFA), the community and families have an essential and central role in promoting, sustaining and influencing education provision. This component is focus on early childhood education, formal education, and non-formal education.
